

HALF A HEART REMAINS

By SP Wright

I gave you everything,
and still you put me through tests;
I unleashed my heart and soul,
and still you left.

I know you fear the future,
do not yet know, what you are truly searching for.
But I do not understand, why you could not release yourself,
and enjoy the present.
With someone, through who's eyes, you are adored and worshipped.

When we are together,
there is happiness,
which I have never before known.
Separated, there is only darkness,
All joy is gone,
and despair remains.

I have become a zombie,
lost and alone.
What once was whole,
can never be gay and content,
once torn asunder,
and left on